DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

Now the Trump has been elected president all the issues that have been going on for years, all of a sudden the citizens are hurt by them. When President Trump was running for president he did say some things that were offensive to cultures and countries, his words may have not been the right ones to use, but the message he was trying to convey was somewhat good. Our country does need to control its border to ensure the safety of our citizens. The people who are protesting and threatening the white house are probably people who connect with the 'make it in America' stand point, they have probably had family or friends who fought to stay in this country, however they do not see that if we keep letting people in good or bad this country is going to overpopulate and we aren't going to have enough jobs for everyone. I believe president trump is going to be the president that will divide this country because of everyone's views. We aren't going to be a nation of one anymore but a nation that divides whites from Hispanics. I also feel like since Trump is putting a stop to immigrants coming in, it's going to cause a problem with other countries because they are going to take it in offensive, like if their race isn't good enough for this country. This is going to cause major problems around the globe, if Trump doesn't choose his words carefully.
